

Male vs. Female Which is the better pet?

When deciding on a male or a female dog, I recommend this: go with the temperament every time, rather than the gender.

In keeping your mind open to the possibility of either gender, you are going to allow yourself the greatest number of suitable possibilities in a litter of puppies.

I have not seen what I would call a male or a female personality.

In every batch of babies, there are stronger, more dominant personalities, and there are some that are very content to let others do the leading.

Male labradoodles, when trained properly, are not prone to marking. I have only seen this behavior in male dogs when there are females in heat on the premises, and in the normal pet home, there isn't that possibility.

Males are every bit as affectionate, loving, and loyal as females of the same breed.

Both make fantastic pets!
